SPRING 2012 No. 32

This is something of a bumper edition of the newsletter which includes news of many people who have been off the radar for some time. We also feature a number of articles, some submitted by readers, which we hope will be of interest. These include a review of former Diplomatic Course students who are now in very senior posts world-wide.

The number of people on the distribution database has grown steadily since we decided to go electronic a few years ago. Again we thank Brian Finch (Mandarin late 60s) for the way he maintains this database and carries out the e-mail distribution. We have decided to continue publishing two editions per year; if we went to only one edition, the quantity of material might prove unwieldy.

David Ellis (Cantonese early 70s) has now retired and has moved to Hawaii. He has kindly agreed to maintain the CLS Newsletter archives and these have been duly shipped to him. He is beginning the painstaking task of scanning to computer the earlier paper editions (i.e. prior to 2008) and by using the original photographs, these will at last come to life. We are delighted that David has taken this on.

STOP PRESS

As we were going to press, we received an e-mail from Kevin Doyle (Mandarin late 70s) which contains a video clip of him delivering a lecture in Mandarin on the delights of Scotch Whisky. You must see it. Go to:

Please keep sending in your contributions to the newsletter. Full details are on the back page.

NEWS OF MEMBERS FROM AROUND THE WORLD

Frances ADAMSON (FCO Diplomatic Course mid 80s) presented her credentials to the President of People's the Republic of China on 16 August 2011 on taking up her post as Australian Ambassador in Since leaving Beijing. CLS Frances has served in diplomatic appointments in Hong Kong, Taiwan and Britain, as well as in Australia. We congratulate Her Excellency on succeeding to this important post and send our best wishes to her and husband Rod.

Jay ALLEN (FAO mid 80s) has sent the happy news that daughter Rebecca was married to Dan Rambert in April 2011in warm sunshine. Our picture shows the family at the wedding.

The school in Maryland at which Jay had been teaching for seven years finally closed its doors last summer and not long after that he suffered a spontaneous tear in the retina of his left eye. Following laser surgery his eye has greatly improved and we hope that this continues.

Geoff BABB (FAO mid 80s) has gone back to teaching at the US Army's Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, after a year's sabbatical spent travelling, researching and writing. He has been at CGSC for twenty years and he and Melissa send greetings from Kansas City.

Tony BROWNE (FCO Diplomatic Course early 70s) was until recently the New Zealand Ambassador to Turkey, having served previously as Ambassador to China, where he was replaced by Carl WORKER (FCO Diplomatic Course mid 80s). Tony is shown (right) at the ANZAC Day Commemorative Ceremony on the Gallipoli Peninsula in April 2011.

Brian BUNKER (Mandarin late 80s) has been in touch with Christmas greetings from Hong Kong, where since 2008 he has been managing director of Asia Strategy at the Riverside Company, a private equity firm. Brian is still in regular contact with Kelly HICKS (FAO late 80s). For more details visit the Riverside Company's website.

Geoff BURDEN (Cantonese late 60s) and wife Mary have been in touch with Christmas greetings from the UK Midlands.

Geoff CHADWICK (Mandarin late 60s) and Helen spent time in Singapore and Malaya in 2011, visiting old Army haunts including Seremban, Johore Bahru, the Cameron Highlands and Malacca. Although Kuala Lumpur and Singapore have changed enormously since the 1960s, the trip brought back many happy memories.

Mrs. CHEN Shu Fong (Staff) featured in the last newsletter, thanks to her grandson Mario who got in touch by e-mail from Australia. Seeing her name prompted a message from Andrew PEARSON (Mandarin early 70s) who remembers her with great affection.

Jim CHILTON (FAO mid 80s) and wife Susan continue to enjoy the country life in Missouri. They have a total of 7 (seven) grandchildren with the two additions in 2011. During the year they also raised two flocks of chickens; the first was destroyed, save the rooster and one hen, by foxes. The second batch was sold at market and replaced by a flock of Rhode Island Reds and Buff Orpington. During the year Jim and Susan also said goodbye to their 16-year-old poodle Simon. Your unworthy editor and Kay had the pleasure of meeting Simon when he was a small puppy newly acquired in 1995 and we remember him with fondness.

Miss Vicky CHU Wai Chin (Staff) has been in touch with the very good news that Durham University in UK has recovered its 4-year Chinese undergraduate course. Vicky is teaching the first year and one of the open-module courses as well as four evening classes. Durham is one of the leading universities in the country and many people were at a loss to understand why Chinese was withdrawn some years ago.

Sheena CONNELLY (Mandarin early 90s) has sold her house and now lives in an apartment close to the Central Business District in Melbourne. Daughter Sara is now living 'temporarily' with her after some time working and living in the Highlands of Scotland. Last year Sheena went with a group (mostly Australian veterans of the Vietnam War) on a trip to Hawaii. They were very well looked after by the US Navy and their tour included a VIP visit to the Arizona Memorial, USS Missouri and the Punchbowl veterans' cemetery. Sheena intends going to Bali, Indonesia in July this year. In the meantime, she is continuing with working a few hours per week with RMIT (Royal Melbourne Institute of Technology), assessing airline pilots for their level of English for the ICAO (International Civil Aviation Organisation) programme. She is still doing some TV work - her last rôle was as a plain-clothes detective on a series called 'Conspiracy 365'.

John CORBETT (FAO late 70s) has been in touch with new e-mail details. It seems hardly possible that it is 17 years since Kay and your unworthy editor had lunch with him and the late Bob Howell in Washington DC. It was a pleasure to hear from him again.

Robin CROSLEGH (Mandarin early 80s) took a trip to France in December last year and readers of the Daily Telegraph would have seen this among the 'Letters to the Editor' a few days later:

SIR – Last week, after a tour of Rouen, in northern France, the local guide invited us to use up the remaining euros in our wallets. "If you do not they will be useless next year," he said. "We will have a new president, thank God, and the EU will be bankrupt."

I tipped the guide with a crisp fiver. Robin Croslegh
Bideford, Devon

Needless to say, the euro is the subject of many jokes at the present time, but the situation is serious, with some towns and villages in Greece now using their own forms of 'currency', or bartering goods.

Grant DOOLEY (Mandarin early 90s) is now Australian Consul-General in Guangzhou. When at CLS Grant was serving in the Royal Australian Navy, but in 1998 joined the Department of Foreign Affairs and Trade. He has previously served in diplomatic posts in Jakarta and Shanghai, as well as in senior posts in Canberra.

Karl EIKENBERRY (FCO Course early 80s and FAO Liaison Officer) has concluded his tour of duty as US Ambassador in Afghanistan and is now a Distinguished Lecturer at the Freeman Spogli Institute for International Studies at Stanford University in California.

Jane HIATT (Mandarin early 90s) has been in touch from Canberra with her new contact details. We are delighted to see her back on the distribution of the newsletter, after some time in the 'Where are they now?' section and we thank Sheena CONNELLY (Mandarin early 90s) for making the connection.

Kelly HICKS (FAO late 80s) has been in touch from New Jersey where he now lives. Kelly works for Verizon, an international company in the field of information technology innovation. We thank Brian BUNKER (Mandarin late 80s) for making the link.

Charles HOOPER (FAO late 80s) finished his assignment as US Defense Attaché in Beijing in 2009 and then spent two years in Hawaii as Deputy Director of Strategy for the US Pacific Command. In August 2011 Charles was posted to Stuttgart, Germany as Director of Strategy, Plans and Programs at US Africa Command in the rank of Major General. We congratulate him on the appointment and promotion and recall with nostalgia the small party in the US Consulate General in Garden Road, Hong Kong, on the occasion of his promotion to Major in 1990.

Mr. HO Pui Kei (Staff) has been in contact with greetings during the Christmas and New Year period and it was extremely kind of him to arrange for a cake to be sent to me on my birthday in March.

Patrick HYLAND (DA Course early 90s) has been in touch seeking details of Kevin DOYLE (Mandarin late 70s) and Dave CLARK (Mandarin late 80s), who worked with him in Beijing when he was the British Defence Attaché in the rank of Brigadier in the 1990s. Patrick has been following with interest the 'Lisbon Maru' campaign by Brian FINCH (Mandarin late 60s) and has sent the opening verses of a poem written by a former Royal Artillery POW in Kobe, Japan in 1942 commemorating the event, which you will find elsewhere in this issue.

Dave KITCHING (Cantonese late 60s and Mandarin late 80s) and wife Joanne paid an extended visit to India during 2011 and while in Mumbai he underwent eye surgery for cataracts, performed by the world-renowned Dr. Anand Shroff, who had been recommended to Dave by a friend. He was not disappointed. The results were astounding and with artificial lenses in both eyes he was soon able to see clearly at long range and close up; even his colour perception has improved. He says: "We are very lucky to live in times when these miracles are seemingly routine".

Miss Marie LAM Fuk Kuen (Staff) has been very busy working at her MA thesis on the subject of a theological approach to the aesthetic in furniture design and is about to submit her finished work for moderation. We wish her every success and we are sure that her hard work will be rewarded.

Bob (Kevin) LAU (Staff) sent greetings at Christmas and at Chinese New Year. He and wife Lisa visited Hong Kong in December 2011 where they enjoyed dinner with Miss Marie LAM and Mrs. KOT Mei Yuk (Ah Mei) (Staff). Bob promises that he will make sure to get a photograph on his next trip.

Bob LAWSON (Cantonese early 80s) last year took early redundancy from his post as a civilian with British Forces in Germany, after 39 years of service to the Crown, with the intention of retiring to Scotland. It is our guess that he won't be too far from a golf course. His new e-mail address is lawtyjnr52@yahoo.co.uk if you want to contact him.

Shaun LEWIS (Mandarin mid 80s) and wife Hilary continue to run a successful garden centre business in the north of England with particularly strong on-line sales. They had a record third quarter and were on track for a record fourth quarter in 2011. Shaun started Spanish guitar lessons during the year and is also in training for the European Indoor Rowing Championships to be held in 2012. He continues to teach Mandarin to GCSE (General Certificate of Secondary Education) level and is considering moving on to teaching at Advanced level. He is in regular touch with Frances ADAMSON (FCO Diplomatic Course mid 80s) and Ken PICKLES (Mandarin late 80s).

Willie (Derek) LUI (Staff) has sold his successful take-away catering business in the south of England and says that he is now 'retired', but with a question mark after the word. We wish him well at whatever he does, and on a personal note, the beautiful business calendars which he habitually sent to our house at Chinese New Year will be missed.

Alan NASH (Mandarin early 70s) and wife Janet both continue their involvement with the great outdoors in Cumbria, Northumbria and the Scottish borders, with Alan still putting together the programme for the local fell-walking club, with about 200 walks annually. They are also involved with Anglo-Saxon/Old English language studies and Alan has been assisting with the preparation of a gazetteer of Anglo-Saxon/Viking sites in Cumbria and Lancashire. They have also been taking part in archaeological digs on Roman roads in the area of Hadrian's Wall and the North Pennines and continue to attend the regular meetings of an Egyptology study group to which they belong.

Jumbo PARTRIDGE (FCO Admin Officer mid 80s) and wife Paula are in regular touch from their home in Queensland and Jumbo's amusing letters often contain photographs of interest and from this distance they both look pretty good for a couple in their eighties. The first here shows Jumbo with his granddaughter Claire (centre, visiting from UK last summer) with next door neighbour Nikeya. The neighbours were fascinated by Claire's Manchester accent.

And finally, Jumbo with neighbours looking very patriotic on Australia Day 2012.

Andrew PEARSON (Mandarin early 70s) was prompted to get in touch after seeing the report on Mrs. CHEN Shu Fong (Staff) in the Autumn 2011 edition of the Newsletter and has asked that his warm greetings be passed to her. Brian FINCH (Mandarin late 60s) has added his good wishes to those of Andrew. Elsewhere in this issue you will find a small feature, with photograph, of the much-loved former teacher.

Bob PEIRCE (FCO Diplomatic course late 70s) is reported to have left the UK Foreign & Commonwealth Office and is now in business in Los Angeles, California.

Ken PICKLES (Mandarin late 80s) has been in touch from Moldova, where he has spent his last winter before leaving the Organisation for Security and Co-operation in Europe (OSCE) in June 2012, after over seven years with the mission in Chisinau. During 2011 he attended a large-scale conference in Germany on Transdniestria conflict settlement issues, which has been the main area of his work in Moldova. Ken doesn't intend retiring completely and hopes to spend more time monitoring elections for the OSCE in the former Soviet republics.

James RAND (Cantonese and Mandarin late 60s) completed a Country Survey for the Australian Wholly Foreign Owned Enterprise (WFOE) in which he previously worked in Zhongshan, China but in spite of higher wage costs the company decided to stay put, China still having advantages over other SE Asian countries for manufacturing enterprises. James then completed a Country Survey for a US aerospace company which already has a factory in the Philippines, but wished to set up a second factory in Asia. James looked at Shenyang, Dalian, Tianjin, Changzhou, Chengdu and Chongqing in China, Ayutthaya, Laem Chabang, Rayong and the eastern sea board of Thailand, and Hanoi, Haiphong and Saigon (Ho Chi Min City) in Vietnam for them. If they had decided on China or Thailand, James would have been given the job of General Manager of the new factory, but the company settled on Haiphong in Vietnam, largely because it works closely with Rolls-Royce aerospace division, and Rolls-Royce have a factory in Vietnam. After this, James set up the quality control procedures in a large Chinese furniture factory in Foshan, Guangdong Province and he hopes to return to north China (Tianjin) as manager of a factory there. As this goes to press he has already had three Skype interviews and is awaiting results. Seeing Brian Finch's memoir of the Sarawak Rangers in our Autumn 2011 issue prompted James to submit his own recollections of serving with that distinguished unit and this can be found elsewhere in this issue.

Kevin RICE (FAO mid 80s) continues to serve as the manager of Pismo Beach, where he and Kitty live in California. He is also the new secretary of the Community Board at the local hospital. During last year he spent an interesting day and night as a guest of the United States Navy, observing training and being briefed on the aircraft carrier USS Abraham Lincoln. Kevin enjoyed being flown on to (arrested landing) and flown off (catapulted) from the vessel.

Simon RODWELL (Mandarin early 70s) has sent greetings at Christmas and New Year.

Claire SIMPSON (the late Tim Milnes was a student of Cantonese at CLS) has moved house to a smaller property not too far from her former address. At Christmas we received this delightful picture of Claire and Mark outside their new home. Some of our readers will recall Mark from his time working in Special Branch of the Royal Hong Kong Police (RHKP).

Cyril THOMAS (Cantonese early 70s) and Gabrielle find that their days are very busy with church-related work in Southampton, in southern England, where they live. They have recently taken over responsibility for the Mission Team and so their responsibilities now extend beyond China. Cyril was back in Xian in October 2011 for the annual conference of the charity which he and Gabrielle established many years ago. They are now in process of handing over the management of their children's homes and centres, as well as healthcare work, to a Chinese non-profit organisation which has been registered with PRC government approval. Cyril continues to keep up his language skills and occasionally speaks at a Chinese church near them. He says that it was a great joy to see last summer Tim SYMONDS (Cantonese nearly 70s) and his wife Zinnia, and to speak in Cantonese at the church they have pioneered in south London. Gabrielle has been unable to travel to China with Cyril because of a heart problem during the past two years, but they are hoping that she will receive appropriate treatment soon.

Clive WALKER (Mandarin early 70s) was one of a small number of Royal Hong Kong Police Force (RHKP) officers to study Mandarin at CLS. After many years, we were pleased to make brief contact with him by e-mail at the end of 2011 and we look forward to hearing from him again with a further update.

Steve WHITE (Mandarin late 80s) is now Bursar at the prestigious Royal Grammar School at Guildford in the south of England. Last year Steve made the headlines by having four songs he had written reach the semi-final stages of the UK Songwriting Contest 2011. This was his best result in the competition, which he has entered in the past. He has a collection of around 200 songs in his portfolio, but has never received any formal tuition in writing music, and is self-taught on guitar, piano and bass. For more details go to http://www.getsurrey.co.uk/news/s/2099255.

Mr. James WONG Kwok Wei (Staff) has been in regular touch from his home in California.

Mrs. WONG Leung Ling Hsiao (Staff) has sent Christmas and New Year greetings from Kowloon. She is still teaching Cantonese part-time at Hong Kong University.

Chris WOOD (FCO Diplomatic Course mid 80s) has had another extremely busy year as Deputy Head of Mission at the British Embassy in Beijing. He expected to be leaving at the end of 2011 but it now looks as though he will remain in post until the summer of 2012. Chris says that there is now a large contingent of former CLS students in Beijing and he had provided many names. A special feature on CLS students currently or at one time in senior posts within their national Diplomatic Corps can be found elsewhere in this issue.

The Lisbon Maru

Readers will recall the project by Brian Finch to raise funds for the villagers of Dongji in Eastern China, whose forebears acted so bravely under fire on 2 October 1942 in rescuing hundreds of British and allied prisoners of war when their ship was torpedoed while they were being transported to Japan from Hong Kong. Patrick Hyland saw this poem in a recent issue of his regimental journal, "The Gunner".

- 1. There are many tales of heroes
 As there are in every war,
 Stories of men who turned the tide
 And died in battle's roar.
 But it's easy to die a hero
 In a bombshell's blinding light;
 This is a tale of a death that was slow,
 In the dark, for a day and a night.
- 2. It was the morning roll call
 On the hellship 'Lisbon Maru'
 On the first day of October
 Nineteen hundred and forty-two.
 Came a loud explosion
 And the old ship lifted and lurched;
 A thousand hearts stopped beating
 And a thousand voices cursed.
- 3. The lights grew dim and faded,
 As the engines ceased to turn.
 A whisper through the crowded hold:
 "Torpedoed! Back in the stern!"
 The ship was already sinking,
 Taking a gradual list
 We heard a whining, hissing roar;
 A second torpedo had missed.
- 4. The guns were roaring above us, Shooting at God knows what. Rifles were pointing down the hold, It was getting rather hot. The warships came alongside And took the Japs away; They battened down the hatches-It seemed we were going to stay.
- 5. That was attempted murder,
 As plain as it could be. There were
 Seven ships around the wreck
 Shooting at men in the sea.
 Japan had blundered once again,
 The British were hard to kill.
 Many have lived to tell the tale,
 And tell the tale we will.

The Editor of "The Gunner" adds:

In the month of remembrance we are indebted to Maj Gen James Templer, whose father was captured at the fall of Hong Kong, for sending us the moving poem The Sinking of the Lisbon Maru, written by Bombardier J W Bowen at Kobe in 1942. The poem, of which this is the start, tells the tale of the sinking of a ship in which prisoners of war were deliberately left locked in the holds to drown and die. Copies of the full poem are available from "The Gunner" on request.

It is some years since this picture appeared in the newsletter and we thought it would please a number of people to see it again, particularly Mario, Mrs. Chen's grandson in Australia, who says that she enjoys talking to him about her days at the school.

Mrs. Chen Shu Fong is seen outside CLS in Osborn Barracks, Hong Kong, on the occasion of her retirement as Senior Lecturer (Mandarin) in 1985. Mrs. Chen now lives in Sydney, Australia. On the left is Mrs. Cheng Ya Lan (Mrs. Zhong) who now lives in South Africa with her son Larry. Right is Mr. Tang Pong, a former Senior Lecturer who was back at the school teaching part time. Mr. Tang later moved to the United States and died there some years ago. As space allows we shall feature other members of our much loved and respected teaching staff in future issues.

THE MALAYSIA RANGERS

by James Rand

(Brian Finch writing in the Autumn 2011 edition prompted this memoir.)

Like Brian I was seconded to the Malaysian Army for a two and a half year tour of duty. On arrival in Malaysia, I first went to Port Dickson for a 6-week Malay language course. As far as I remember there were six of us on this course. My first position with the 2nd Battalion Malaysia Rangers was Mortar Platoon Commander. Prior to Malaysia I had attended the Support Platoon Commanders' Course at Netheravon, so I was familiar with 81mm mortars, though the Malaysian Army had the French Hotchkiss Brandt mortar and not the one used by the British Army. We were stationed at Batu Gajah in northern Malaya and also deployed on the Malay/Thai border for some of the time. While in Batu Gajah I approached a local Chinese school and in my spare time was taught some Mandarin, eventually achieving colloquial standard when I took the exam in Singapore. Later on, when I arrived at CLS I could already speak some Mandarin, although my course was Cantonese.

Midway through my secondment to the Malaysia Rangers, the battalion was posted to Tawau in Sabah and I was given a rifle company to command, even though I was only a lieutenant. I was the only orang puteh (white man) in the battalion and when it moved to Sabah I was on the troopship with the soldiers, whilst all the other officers flew.

About two days into our voyage we were sailing along the north coast of Sarawak – clear blue sky, deep blue sea, flying fish, and tiny islands to port – it was like a scene from 'South Pacific', incredibly soothing and beautiful; all those others who flew didn't know what they were missing. The joke was on them – they thought I had been given the unpleasant task when I was detailed to the troopship.

The soldiers in the 2nd Battalion were mostly Kadazan, and I even learnt snatches of the Kadazan language, which is completely different from Malay. I enjoyed my time with the Malaysia Rangers, and if Brian and I ever meet up it would be interesting to swap our experiences.

THE CLS "DIPLOMATIC CORPS"

During the life of the school a large number of Foreign Service personnel from many different countries attended specially designed courses, usually directed by the late Mr. Tang Pong MBE, as part of their language training in preparation for diplomatic posts. Many of these have gone on to represent their nations in very senior posts at various times and we are proud to record some of their names.

Frances ADAMSON Ambassador to China Grant DOOLEY Consul General in Guangzhou

Normand MAILHOT Ambassador to Cambodia

R.VENU High Commissioner in Hongkong; Consul General in Dubai

Tony BROWNE Ambassador to China; Ambassador to Turkey Carl WORKER Ambassador to China Michael CLIFTON Consul General in Osaka John McARTHUR Consul General in Shanghai

Lars Fredén Ambassador to China

Simon FEATHERSTONE High Commissioner in Malaysia Chris WOOD Deputy Head of Mission in China; Consul-General in Guangzhou Bob PEIRCE Consul General in San Francisco

Karl EIKENBERRY Ambassador to Afghanistan

In addition to these, many others have served in Chargé d'Affaires posts, or as Defence and Military Attachés, or as Trade Representatives, or as Cultural Attachés, or in other important posts in various Diplomatic Missions, particularly in China. This list is by no means exhaustive, and CLS is pleased to have played some part in preparing all our Foreign Service students for their careers.

Please continue to let us know what you are doing. There is no call for modesty here – others will be interested to learn of your achievements. This is our newsletter and without your news, we have no material for inclusion. Please remember to let Brian Finch know if you change your e-mail address and if you receive a paper version please let me know if you change your postal address.
